COATS OF ARMS IN QUEENBOROUGH CASTLE.

BY R. H. D'ELBOUX, M.C., M.A., F.S.A.

T.

In the library of W. J. Hemp, Esq., F.S.A., of Criccieth, is an heraldic manuscript of c. 1610 or earlier on Venetian¹ paper produced at the end of the sixteenth century and bound in a Caroline binding stamped with the initials T. P. for Thomas Peniston.

It contains firstly the arms of the gentry of Kent as once displayed in Queenborough Castle; secondly and without a break, an interesting armoury of Kent; thirdly the arms of various of the nobility of the period; fourthly a list of baronets in order of creation, 92 in all, the last two, in a different hand, Sir Thomas Penningston and Sir Thomas Temple, both created September 24th, 1611, (this list is an insertion in the volume); fifthly (also an insertion) a continuation of the list to 1620, inclusive; sixthly, beside this, a fine marshalling of 36 coats for Penyston of Cornwall House, co. Oxon; and lastly on the following page, an inferior trick of Penyston quarterly of four, with the Ulster hand in base, and an inescutcheon of Watson. This, with its accompanying subscription, is, save for the Ulster hand, exactly as in Guillim, 1632 edn., p. 388, where Guillim states: "I have omitted to blazon his Baronets marke because it is not cut in the Escocheon." Beneath the subscription is "This booke was given mee by Sr. Thos. Penyston 15° Junii, 1641. E:W:" and on the fly leaf at the beginning of the MS., in the same hand, is written Ed: Woods. I have been unable to trace this man, though I suspect an unchronicled marriage with a female Penyston, probably without surviving off-spring, since this MS. was the property of Miss Frances Peniston of Cornwall House, the last member of the family, and given by her to her cousin, Mr. Richard O. Assheton, from whom by marriage it has descended to its present owner.

The connection of the Penystons with Kent starts in the sixteenth century. There is a stray cleric, Thomas, curate of Hope in 1502, and vicar of Selling at the time of his death in 1518; in his will of that date he is of New Romney, and in 1511 he leased and farmed the rectory there (A.C., XLVII, 24; XXXI, 90; XIII, 413). But one must turn to North Kent in Elizabethan times for any connection with this MS., when Thomas Penyston of Deane, co. Oxon, married Mary, daughter and coheir of John Somer of Newlands in St. Mary's, Hoo, Somer being Clerk of the Privy Signet, and Penyston Clerk of the Council. John Philipot, Somerset Herald, edited and published Camden's Remains concerning Britain, and in this, "upon a Piller of the Cathedral Church of Rochester," is the epitaph of Thomas Peniston, unfortunately without date. Thorpe, in the Custumale Roffense, places it in the Nave, and adds that it was destroyed in the Great Rebellion. His widow married Sir Alexander Temple, Knt., of Long House, Chandwell, Essex, who died in 1629, and he, too, was buried in the cathedral, where a tourist of 1635 noticed "Sir Alexander Temple's monument with his lady" (A.C., XI, 5-9). Pedigrees (here revised) give only one son to Thomas and Mary, another Thomas, the donor of this volume to Ed. Woods in 1641, who was created a baronet of Leigh in Sussex in 1611 and whose will was proved at Oxford in May. 1644. He married twice; firstly in 1613 to Martha, daughter of Sir Thomas Temple, Bart., of Stowe, his stepfather's brother, and secondly to Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Sir Thomas Watson of Halstead. widow of William Pope (eldest son of Sir Wm. Pope, created Earl of Downe in 1628) whom she had married at St. Margaret's Westminster in 1615, and who died in 1624. Thomas, the eldest son of the Peniston-Watson alliance, was of Cornwall House, which thenceforth remained the seat of the family. It seems likely, however, that Mary Somer had other children by Thomas Peniston, for the will of William Peniston¹ of Milton by Gravesend (Harvey 139) was proved, 1639, by his brother John. John Peniston also proved the will of John Causon of Frindesbury (Sadler 129) in 1635, and occurs in the rental of Hoden Fee of 1649, a manor of Cobham mainly situate in Frindesbury.

The first list of baronets, a different script from the Queenborough arms and the armoury, has had the two last names added to it of Sir Thomas Temple and Sir Thomas Peniston, by the same hand that continued the list to 1620, possibly that of Sir Thomas Peniston; the binding, too, seems to have been made for him. The fact that the armoury, though general to Kent, contains much of North Kent, including Peniston, and is prefaced by the Queenborough Castle series, suggests an origin in the neighbourhood of the Hundred of Hoo, and permits the conjecture that it was a family MS., for that reason preserved, added to and bound by Sir Thomas at a later date, and save for the donation to Mr. Woods, retained by the family to the end.

Queenborough Castle, commenced in 1361, is attributed by J. H. Harvey to Henry Yeveley, Mason of the King's Works to Edward III (Henry Yevele, pp. 25-26). It was demolished in, or soon after, 1650² and only the well remains. The Invicta Magazine in 1908 (Vol. I, 44-5) printed extracts relating to Queenborough from "A Tour thro' Great Britain," published anonymously in 1753. Among them is the following passage also given by Hasted:—

[&]quot;This Castle was standing in the year 1629, for Mr. Johnston,

He married Eliz. d. T. Heyward of East Milton: she died 23 March, 1635;
 her M. I. in Milton by Gravesend Church.
 See Rambles in the Isle of Sheppey by Turmine, 1843.

in his little book, intituled Iter Plantarum Investigationis ergo susceptum, tells us that he saw there a noble large Dining-room or Hall, round the top of which were placed the Arms of the Nobility and Gentry of Kent; and, in the middle, those of Queen Elizabeth, with the following Latin verses under, in great letters:

¹Lilia virgineum pectus regale leonis
Significant; vivas virgo, regasque leo;
Umbra placet vultus, vultus quia mentis imago;
Mentis imago placet, mens quia plena Deo:
Virgo Deum vita, regina imitata regendo,
Viva mihi vivi fiat imago Dei.
Qui leo de Juda est, et Flos de Jesse, leones
Protegat et flores, ELIZABETHA, tuos.

A.D. 1593.

These arms start the Peniston volume, and including the Queen's, number 45. On the opposite page is written by Ed. Woods, "Arms of the Nobility and Gentry (Mr. Johnston's phraseology is curiously akin) of Kent liveinge in the yeare of our Lord, 1593: as they are depicted in the Castle of Quinborough." No one represented is less than a Knight. As the alphabetical armoury which follows contains 308 shields, I cannot feel it was part of the mural decorations. The Knights are listed in order of creation.

At the time of their erection, Sir Edward Hoby was Constable of Queenborough, and had the same year been made Knight of the Shire and received the lease of Shurland in Kent. One wonders if they were placed merely patriotically or rather in preparation for a visit by the Queen.

In conclusion, I would record my appreciation of Mr. Hemp's courtesy in allowing me the use of the manuscript, and Mr. Councer's for a transcript of Dr. Cock's Philipot MS.

Leicester, by whom issue; ancestor of the Earls of Drogheda; Knighted by Sir William Drury, Lord Deputy, in camp, 1579.

In the DeLisle and Dudley papers, II, 32, Waterhouse writes to Sir Henry Sidney defending himself against Mr. Edward Moore's public imputation that he showed ingratitude to Sidney, and in 1580 Sir Henry writes to Lord Grey, Lord Deputy: "I had forgotten three kinsmen of my own, Sir Edward More, Owen More [the eldest] and Thomas More; let them know I forget them not."

fo. 2. 17. Sr Edwarde Hobye.

Argent 3 spindles gules.

For these arms see Misc. Gen. et Her. I, 141; the exemplification of 1561 gives this coat of "clewes or bottomes," as adopted by Hoby, on marrying the heiress of Badland, co. Radnor, but the explanation seems open to question. Sir Edward's arms are given as such, impaling Cooke of Essex, differenced with a crescent. He was of Bisham, Berks., and of Sheppey; Constable of Queenborough Castle, 1582; granted Shurland in Eastchurch 1593 on lease for life by Elizabeth; Knight of the Shire, 1593; Custos Rotulorum of Kent, 1596; died at Queenborough, 1616 (Hasted, folio, II, p. 649); an intimate of the Sidneys, as the following extracts from the DeLisle and Dudley papers show: "I have given Terry charge to Serve Sir Edward Hobbye with a very good buck this season," 1607; "Sir Edward Hoby prayseth your apricots but I fear I shall see none of them," Viscount Lisle to his wife 1608; Viscount Lisle wrote from Shurland in 1610. He was "dubbed at Somerset Place in London on Tuesday the 22 of May, anno 1582, the day after his mariage with the Baron of Hunston's daught'r." (Metcalfe's Knights, p. 134.)

To him Camden dedicated his Hibernia. He also indulged in religious controversy, as is evidenced by the following title page of a quarto, published by Nathaniel Butter at the Signe of the Pied Bull, 1615. A CURRY-COMBE FOR A COXE-COMBE, or Purgtories Knell; in Answer of a lewd Libell foricated by Iabal Rachil against Sir Edw. He is given as one of the Justices of the peace, or resident in Kent in 1593 (Drake's Blackheath, XX), but is not in Lambarde's list of 1596. The arms of Beeston are in the armoury of this MS. and are also instanced in Filmer Southowe's armoury of Kent, compiled in the late 17th century (Add. MS. 14307, f. 7, no. 8). Apparently the son of Henry and his wife, Ann Devereux. Shown in Visitation of 1574 as a Knight, but this visitation was badly edited and contains later additions, unnoted as such. He married d. of Sir William Drury and had one child, Ursula, married to William Isley; Streatfeild says he was of Bobbing; Knighted at Rouen by the Earl of Essex, 1591.

Sr Edwarde Brooke.

Visitation of Kent, 1619, says 2nd son of Thomas Brooke, who married Susan, d. of John Cranmer, (There was another son, not in Visitation, Thomas, of Chislet Park) and was 2nd son of John Lord Cobham. Waller (A.C., XI, 112) says his father Thomas was 3rd son of Thomas, Lord Cobham. He is down as "slain in battle," probably in the French expedition, since he is here among the 1591 Knights. Shaw lists him 1599 (1591).

38. Sr Convers Clyfford.

As for 36.

3rd son of George of Bobbing; married Mary, d. of Francis Southwell of Windham Hall, Norfolk, as 3rd husband; Governor of Connaught and Privy Councillor of Ireland; he, too, is down as Knight in Visitation of 1574; Knighted Rouen, 1591; will 1600 (sentence 49, Wallop); his widow married Sir Anthony St. Leger, Master of the Rolls in Ireland, and was buried 1603, aet. 37, St. Patrick's, Dublin.

Stowe says son to Thomas Rowe of Penshurst; Furley (III, 288) says native of Hawkhurst; free of the Ironmongers Company; Lord Mayor and Knighted, 1592; died in his mayoralty, according to 1634 Visitation of London; married Jane Lewkenor; will (P.C.C. 36, Dixy) proved 1594, of St Laurence, Old Jury, Isle of Sheppy, Muswell, Middlesex and Epping, Essex:

Hasted, who quotes from a MS. pedigree of "E.H." says the family originates from Rowes Place in Aylesford.

Sir Thomas Rowe, merchant taylor, Lord Mayor, 1569 is given in Stowe as son to Robert, merchant taylor and grandson to Reynald Rowe of Leigh. To Sir Thomas arms were granted by Garter and Norroy, 1566, as here, with 3 bezants on the chevron (Visitation, London, 1568). Stowe shows Sir William with the bezants also, and both coats with a crescent in centre chief. Sir Henry Rowe, mercer, son to Sir Thomas and Lord Mayor, 1607, is given the same coat without difference, so it seems likely both Elizabethans were 2nd sons.

43. Sr Anthony Manye.

Per pale argent and sable, 3 chevrons between 3 cinqfoils all counter-changed.
