RECENT DISCOVERIES IN THE ARCHIVES OF CANTERBURY CATHEDRAL

BY W. P. BLORE.

IN the Assisa Scaccarii or Annual Balance Sheet, which is copied into Register H. for the years 1252 to 1262, there is a separate department called Carpentaria under the charge of one of the Monks, who is referred to as Carpentarius. The following transcripts are of these sections for the three years 1252-54. In 1252 the monk in charge was William de Wincestr' from Michaelmas to Easter, and Henry, whose surname is not given, from Easter to the following Michaelmas.

This last name is more probably to be read as Turg', for in the Treasurers' Accounts F.2 the name is written Turgisium, and at the end of the Assisa itself under Treasurers' Accounts occurs :—
 Contra dominum Th. Carpenterium     iiii li. xiii s.

In the Bartoner's Roll for 1317/18 (vi. ii.) occurs an early reference to the Cathedral glazier :—

Item liberat' Simoni Vitriario, precepto domini A. Oysel tunc Thesaurarii iii summe iii bus.

A further source of details of building expenditure is the Day-Book of Priors Richard Oxenden and Robert Hathbrand for the years 1331-43 (D.E.3, in wooden box marked CCC. INDEX vol. 4).

1331 Item dat' Cementario facienti tumbam<sup>3</sup> domini H. Prioris

Extensive alterations to the Cathedral, including the rebuilding of the nave, had been determined upon before 1377, and in that or the following year the foundations of the aisle walls were laid. It is usually held that the death of Archbishop Simon Sudbury at the hands of the rebels in 1381 was the principal cause of the stoppage of work between 1383 and the election of Prior Chillenden in 1391. Probably the immediate cause of the break was the occurrence of a severe earthquake shock on the 21st of May 1382, for the Treasurers' Accounts show extensive damage to the monastic buildings :—

Treasurers' Accounts, xv. 2.

Et in nova clausura ferrea sub magnis organis<sup>4</sup> per manus Iohannis Godenyston xxxi li. xx d.

During the building of the nave between 1391 and 1400 Master Henry Yevele, the King's Chief Mason, seems to have been retained by Prior Chillenden, and his name occurs in the only surviving Prior's account of this period :—

Prior's Account Roll, xvii.4.

From the opening of the fifteenth century the few remaining accounts of the Priors and a few miscellaneous documents provide additional detail to that contained in the Fabric Rolls :—

Prior's Account Roll, xvii.1.

1411 (List of payments to persons named, possibly tradesmen)

Thome Rudham	(amount faded)
Thome Melyour' pictori	xv li. xvi s. viii d.

Willelmo Maydestane	xlvi li. xiii s. iii d.
Simoni Carpenterio London	xiii li. xix s. ix d.
Ricardo Cliderowe de antiquo debito domini T. Prioris	vii li.

Mr. Arthur Oswald informs me that several of these names occur in livery lists of the Prior contained in Bodleian Tanner MS. 165 — List of 1398 'Armigeri'

Henry Yvele ; Stephen Lote (Yevele's successor as King's Mason) ; John Pyrye (surveyor and clerk of the cathedral works) ; Thomas Hoo ; John Wulward (apparently first of the working masons and carpenters, respectively, or resident masters or wardens of the works) ; Simon Carpenter ; John Bulstrode ; John Kent.

List of 1412 'Armigeri'

Stephen Lote ; John Kent ; Simon Salisbury ; William Maidstone.

<sup>1</sup> The workmen had unpaid holidays of a week each at Christmas, Easter, and Whitsun, and on certain other feasts.

nove librarie et nove arterie<sup>1</sup> (sic) hoc anno xxiii li. iii s. iii d.

Box 62. No. 2.

An indenture of lease of 1446 fixes the position of the lodge or shed wherein the staff of masons worked :—

Indenture of Lease, dated 27 September, 1446, from Robert Colbroke, sacrist, to Henry Chesman of Canterbury, Mercer, includes Unum gardinum cum pertinenciis jacent' infra Cimiterium ecclesie Christi Cantuar (lately held by Thomas Smythe) inter tenementum dictorum Prioris et conventus versus south et gardinum ac domum Cemen-tariorum vocat' le loygge versus North et east et tenementum pertinens officio sacristarie predicte versus west (for 16 years by rent of 12d. at Christmas).

Prior's Account Roll, xvii.9.

1453/4 Et solut' Iohanni Pyle vitriario pro vitriacione fenestrarum in aula Prioris xxiii s. iii d. (Pyle occurs elsewhere glazing the scaccarium of the Prior.)

hostrie infra curiam xxv s. xi d.

Et sol' Rogero Mayhew, Iohanni Coke et aliis laborariis operantibus circa reparacionem aule borialis xiiii s. viii d. ob. (Roger Mayhew 'mason' occurs in Mr. Oswald's extracts from Tanner MS. 165 in livery lists of the 'Valetti Prioris' for 1453, 1454, 1455 and 1456.)

Et sol' Iohanni Vowler carpentario pro diversis reparacionibus per

1467/8 Et sol' Willelmo Bonevyle de Corff' pro Petra marmorea pro
Tumba Thome Goldstone nuper Prioris. iiii li. x (margin torn)

<sup>1</sup> Presumably a wooden water-main, unless "asteria," a word of uncertain meaning (perhaps a fireplace), is intended. Cf. B. S. Snell, "Some Ancient Building Terms," in R. I. B. A. Journal, December 18th, 1926.

<sup>2</sup> As appears by the lord Prior's book (of accounts).

Prior's Account Roll, xvii. 12. (William Selling, Prior).
